

WORLD EXPORT DEVELOPMENT FORUM

TRADE FOR SUCCESS: CONNECT, COMPETE, CHANGE

Colombo, Sri Lanka – 12-13 October 2016

The World Export Development Forum (WEDF) is a unique global conference and business-to-business matchmaking event dedicated to supporting trade-led development.

As the flagship event of the International Trade Centre (ITC), WEDF brings together over 600 senior policymakers, business leaders, and representatives of trade and investment support institutions and international trade agencies to address trade competitiveness topics and to establish new partnerships.

The 18th edition of WEDF will be co-hosted by ITC and the Ministry of Development Strategies and International Trade of Sri Lanka through the Sri Lanka Export Development Board (EDB).

ITC is the only United Nations organization with an exclusive focus on assisting small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) to internationalize. In Sri Lanka, where 51% of businesses are SMEs, EDB is the key agency promoting linkage to international markets and partners.

Sri Lanka has surpassed most of the Millennium Development Goals (MDGs) targets set for 2015 and is today a middle-income country, defining new trade and investment opportunities at a strategic location along the new maritime Silk Road in the Indian Ocean.

Trade for Success: Connect, Compete, Change

Under the theme 'Trade for Success: Connect, Compete, Change', WEDF 2016 will focus on helping SMEs flourish in regional and global value chains against the backdrop of new trade realities: the digitalisation of the global economy, dramatic shifts in consumer demand and buying power, and new patterns of regional integration.

CONNECT: As megaregions such as TPP and TTIP emerge, the voice of business is essential to shaping strategies for national competitiveness.

COMPETE

Digital doors to trade are opening for SMEs to compete in the global economy.

CHANGE

Standards are an SME gateway to global markets. They reflect changing consumer demand for greater social, environmental and health accountability in trade.

WEDF 2016 PROGRAMME

Trade for Success: Connect, Compete, Change

V4, 18 February 2016

New realities for international business

The consumers of tomorrow are shifting. By 2030, two thirds of the middle class will be in Asia, 14% in Europe, and 7% in North America, according to the Brookings Institution. Urbanization is also reshaping consumer and production patterns.

As a result, much trade will be within and between South-South regions, such as between Asia and fast-growing Eastern Africa, or Latin America. Consumers of the future will be predominantly young. They will travel, use mobile devices and pay attention to values for money – including cost, social and environmental value. The jobs of the future will take these trends into account.

Trade policy is changing fast to meet these new realities, with the accent on megaregional trade agreements and consideration of sustainable consumer trends. The UN Sustainable Development Goals reflect the need for trade policy and business solutions that are sustainable – with an accent on women, youth and environmental protection.

This trade increasingly takes place within regional and global value chains.

The WEDF response: Tailoring business – doing business. The 10th edition of the World Export Development Forum, set in Colombo, Sri Lanka, looks at the changed terms in sustainable trade – and the impact on small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs), which form the backbone of all economies.

This WEDF helps SMEs understand how to flourish within value chains, through the strategy of Connect, Compete and Change.

Connect, Compete, Change

CONNECT - As regional blocks cross oceans, the voice of business is crucial to shape strategies for national competitiveness. Trade facilitation and logistics remain important issues to address.

COMPETE - Digital doors to trade are opening for SMEs to compete in the global economy.

CHANGE - Standards are an SME gateway to global markets. They reflect changing consumer demand for greater social, environmental and health accountability in trade. The hidden sector is one example of that, where companies need to adjust their offer for a market experience that is both authentic and sustainable for local communities.

Event structure

The WEDF plenary sessions bring together major thought leaders in business, government and academia to address these issues.

Practical 'in focus' and 'how to' sessions are matched with each plenary topic – bringing business cases, ITC tools and advisory services to help businesses take advantage of new trends and put recommendations into action.

Facilitated business-to-business meetings provide the opportunity to explore new business opportunities on the spot.

DAY 1 – Wednesday, 12 October 2016MORNING SESSIONS*PLENARY 1: WHEN REGIONAL BLOCKS CROSS OCEANS*Session manager: Rajesh Agarwal, Chief, Trade Facilitation and Policy for Business

This plenary highlights the voice of business in shaping strategies for national competitiveness in the new trade landscape. The trade policy game has changed with the rise of regional and mega-regional trade agreements – from 90 in 1990, there were 270 in 2015. The Trans-Atlantic Trade and Investment Partnership, the Trans-Pacific Partnership and the emerging Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership are reshaping global trade imbalances. Regions and sub-regions everywhere are placing the accent on integration to stay competitive.

Suggested speakers/topics:

- Top business/trade journalist – impact of mega-regional agreements on business
- President, Confederation of Indian Industries – How business can shape trade agreements
- COMESA SG and/or Minister, Kenya or Minister, South Africa – How trade agreements affect Africa (e.g. AGOA)
- Government leader – Malaysia (preferred), Vietnam or Peru – Benefiting from mega-regional agreements
- Business leader from Chile or Singapore
- Commonwealth SG – The voice of business among Commonwealth states

AFTERNOON SESSIONSPLENARY 4: THE TOURIST IN SEARCH OF AUTHENTICITYSuggested session manager: Rob*

This session is about building value by creating a unique experience for today's tourist.

GOALS: We are becoming more socially conscious. Among online consumers, 65% are willing to pay more for products and services from companies who have a positive social and environmental impact – with the Asia-Pacific region in the lead, at 84% (Nielsen 2014 survey).

This is also the case for tourism. More tourists are looking for a tailored experience that is authentic and has sustainable impact on local communities.

Wellness tourism, for instance, is estimated to reach $67.5 billion or 16% of total tourism revenues, by 2017 (Stanford Research Institute). These tourism sectors are fueled by travelers who seek value, quality and well-being. Other such segments are eco-, adventure, and medical tourism.

Suggested speaker topics:

- Minister of Trade, India – challenges for tourism promotion
- Sri Lanka representative – Ayurveda
- Brazil – (for regional balance)
- Morocco – wellness tourism (idea helps link to WIPO)
- Hungary – (link to next WEDF host)
- UK Secretary of State for International Development
- UNWTO

SME "HOW TO" WORKSHOP: HOW TO GO DIGITAL*Suggested managers: Marcos Viana, David Cardoso*

This session will provide e-commerce expertise to SMEs, as well as introduce them to ITC e-learning courses for young entrepreneurs through the SME Trade Academy.
